The town of Brushy Fork, Ill., has a spinster who all because she was disappointed in love in the days of her confiding and unsophisticated youth hasn't spoken to a man in forty years and doesn't propose to have anything to do with them when she is dead, an event for which she is preparing. In her will she provides that no man shall have anything to do with her funeral, that the preacher, pall bearers, hearse driver and every one who participates in disposing of her remains shall be women.

Deacon Wood, of Barrington R. The ejecting process consisted of larruping the poor woman unmercifully. Schooner Boxed Moore Towed into Port.

The schooner Roger Moore, which was disabled in a gale not long since, was towed up to the city yesterday by the tug Wm. F. McCauley, Capt. Jacobs, of Savannah, arriving here at 3 p. m. The schooner is at Skinner's shipyard awaiting repairs.

The tug, with the schooner in tow, left Savannah at 6 o'clock Tuesday morning and will leave on her return trip at 6 o'clock this morning. This is the second trip of the McCauley to Wilmington this year. The family of Capt. Jacobs, the McCauley's master, reside in Wilmington and he is well known here.

The Smith's Island Case.

The STAR congratulates the heirs of the late Maj. John Walker on winning the first battle for their legal rights in the case involving the title to Smith's Island. Most of the heirs are citizens of Wilmington; and while there are quite a number of them, the share of each will amount to a considerable sum, if the suit is finally decided in their favor, and of this there seems to be very little doubt. Smith's Island is one of the most valuable pieces of property in this section, and will no doubt, before the lapse of many years, be the site of one of the most popular seaside hotels on the Atlantic coast.

Death of Mr. Frank DeR. Young.

The death of Mr. Frank DeRosset Young, of Birmingham, Ala., several days since, removed a man of many admirable traits. He died at the home of his brother-in-law, Mr. R. J. Blackwell, of Marion, S. C., and the telegrams which poured in from Birmingham showed most plainly in what high esteem he was held in the city where the greater part of his business life was spent.

Mr. Young's wife, who survives him, was Miss Emma W. Wright, the youngest daughter of the late Joshua G. Wright, Esq., of this city.

Georgia Rice.

The schooner May Thompson, Capt. Cahoon, arrived in port yesterday with a cargo of 3,268 bushels of rice for the National Rice Milling Company. This is the third vessel that has brought rice from Georgia and South Carolina for the mills here. The rice which forms the cargo of the May Thompson was grown on the banks of the Satilla river, Georgia.

Bottom Rail on Top.

Yes, yes, the forecast was correct. Two-thirds of the policemen of Newbern and one of the two sergeants are negroes. And the city attorney is a negro, too. DISTRESSING OCCURRENCE.

Little Walter L. Parsley Knocked Down and Killed by a Bicycle Rider on Market Street—Particulars of the Deplorable Accident.

"The old must die, the young may die." Sad it is when we realize, perhaps for the first time, the truth of the latter phrase of this familiar quotation, and know that the voice of one of tender age, whose childish prattle has amused the firesids and whose innocence has blessed the home, is stilled forever, and the soul of the one we loved so dearly, and who loved us, has unexpectedly received and responded to the summons of the Creator. Such was the death of young Walter L. Parsley, Jr., aged five years and six months.

Yesterday afternoon about 1 o'clock, young Walter, together with two playmates of about his age—little Dorothy and Nelson MacRae—children of Mr. Hugh MacRae, was playing in the street about a half a block east of his father's residence, which is on Market street between Seventh and Eighth. During the course of the game the children had occasion to run back and forward across the street, and as they were about halfway across upon one of their childish chases, a colored man on a bicycle rapidly approached the group of children from the direction of Seventh and Market streets. The rider halloaed to the children, warning them of their danger, and rang the bell on the bicycle. Not possessed with the cool judgment of older heads, the children were dumfounded, and young Walter stood still and in another moment the bicycle struck him on the right hip, knocking him to the ground where he struck his head severely, probably upon a rock, and was rendered unconscious. Little Nelson MacRae also received a blow in the accident, which luckily was neither serious nor very painful, and the bicycle and rider were thrown to the ground. Perceiving that little Walter was seriously hurt, the 'cyclist, Adolphus Thomas, picked him up in his arms and carried him to the home of the injured lad's parents. Medical aid was at once summoned, and shortly afterwards Dr. G. G. Thomas, the family physician, and Dr. William Love were in attendance, and later Dr. A. H. Harriss, but little Walter failed to regain consciousness, and at 5 o'clock the end came.

Death resulted from a fracture of the skull on the left side of the head, and there was a contusion on the right hip.

The deceased is a son of Mr. Walter L Parsley, and was a bright little lad, possessed of a cheery and loving disposition, and was one who had many friends among the older people and who loved dearly and was loved in return by his playmates.

The accident is said to have been unavoidable. Adolphus Thomas, who is a man about thirty five years of age, and who follows the vocation of a shoemaker in this city, was seen by a STAR representative last night, and he expressed the deepest regret. As to how the accident happened Thomas made the following statement, viz:

"I was standing on the north side of the corner of Market and Seventh streets when I was told that some stevedores, whom I had been in the habit of renting my bicycle to, were on Eighth street. I jumped on my wheel and had gotten about half a block when I saw five little children running across the street from the south side—three girls and two little boys—Mr. Parsley's little boy was in the lead, and was being followed by Mr. MacRae's boy. I halloed to them and rang the bell, and as I saw Mr. Parsley's boy was looking back watching Mr. MacRae's boy I attempted to stop, and just at that time Mr. Parsley's son saw me and stopped short and my wheel hit him, throwing him down, and Mr. MacRae's boy, who was close behind, fell over the wheel, bruising himself. The wheel did not run over Mr. Parsley's boy, but threw him the same as if he had been lifted and thrown. Mr. MacRae's boy fell over after the wheel was down. I picked Mr. Parsley's son up and carried him to his mother."

Thomas later went to the City Hall and was locked up till the accident can be investigated.

Balloon Ascension and Parachute-Drop.

Mr. Charles Thompson, Dr. Blue Mountain Joe's æronaut, made a splendid balloon ascension yesterday afternoon. The balloon went up from the tent on Front street between Church and Castle streets, and the daring passenger landed in Oakdale Cemetery. There would be something decidedly suggestive about this latter statement if it were not for the fact that Prof. Thompson's trusty parachute opened up at the proper moment and let him down safely and gracefully. There were crowds of people in the streets watching the performance.

Public Address at the Y. M. C. A. Sunday Next.

Mr. H. P. Anderson, of Asheville, International Secretary of the Young Men's Christian Association, is expected to address a mass meeting at the Y. M. C. A. next Sunday afternoon. He will be in the city several days and will be the guest of Mr. B. G. Worth. The mass meeting will be for women as well as men.

Death of Officer Woebse's Infant Son.

The friends of police officer H. H Woebse will sympathize with him sincerely in the loss of his little boy, Otto Albert, who passed away yesterday evening at 6.50 o'clock at the age of one year and eight months. The funeral will be conducted this afternoon at 3 o'clock from the residence, 609 Swann street. The interment will be made in Oakdale cemetery.

AT ST. JAMES' CHURCH.

Marriage of Miss Margaret Engelhard Meares to Mr. William B. Thorpe—A Notable and Pretty Wedding.

The marriage celebration of Mr. William B. Thorpe and Miss Margaret Engelhard Meares, both of this city, yesterday evening at 5.45 o'clock at St. James' Episcopal church, was a notable and pretty event.

The arrangements for the joyous occasion were carefully planned and as skillfully executed—the flowers, which tastily adorned the altar and surroundings, were selected for beauty and culture, and the high taste of the decorative artist was displayed in the harmonious blending of the many varieties of flowers, each of which possessed a delicate and beautiful shade of color, properly placed. All the little details of the ceremony attested fine management, and the bridal procession as it passed gracefully up the centre aisle of the church was a most majestic and fashionable one, and presented a picturesque sight grouped around the altar, while Rev. Rob't Strange, D. D., rector of the church, joined the two loving hearts together in the holy bonds of matrimony; at the conclusion of which the organ melodiously pealed forth and the bell merrily rang out the happy announcement of the forming of the union.

The bridal party entered the church in the following order, and while Lohengrin's wedding march was being rendered on the organ by Mr. E. H. Munson, viz: Messrs. Thos. H. Wright, H. M. Chase, J. M. Brand and Will Crosswell, ushers; Mrs. B. F. Baird, of Philadelphia, Miss Lucy Thorp, of Rocky Mount, sister of the groom, and Misses Sallie Potter and Maude McLeod, of this city, and Messrs. R. B. Davis, Jr., Joe Ramsey and J. C. Brasswell, of Rocky Mount, and Mr. Jno. C. James, of this city, bridesmaids and groomsmen; Miss Eliza McPherson, maid of honor; Miss Sue Meares, sister of the bride, maid of honor; Master Hal Boatwright and little Miss Annette Claypool Munds, cousin of the bride, bridesmaid and groomsman; Miss Meares, the bride, leaning upon the arm of her father, Mr. Walker Meares. Mr. Thorpe, the groom, entered the church from the vestry room, accompanied by his cousin and best man, Mr. A. A. Thorpe, of Rocky Mount. While the bridal party were retiring from the church Mr. Munson rendered Mendelssohn's wedding march on the organ.

From the church the bridal party were driven in carriages to the residence of the bride's father, where refreshments were served to the party, while the bride was changing her costume to a handsome travelling suit, preparatory for an extended tour North, leaving on the 7.15 o'clock Atlantic Coast Line train.

The bride was attired in a fashionable white silk gown en train, and carried a choice bunch of bride's roses. The maids of honor were habited in stylish gowns of pink silk and carried bouquets of pink carnations. Each of the bridesmaids was dressed in beautiful gowns of white organdie, trimmed with roses, and each carried a bouquet of white carnations. The gentlemen attendants wore the conventional black.

The presents received by the contracting parties were many and costly, attesting love and friendship.

Mr. and Mrs. Thorpe upon their return will reside on South Seventh street.

THE DOLL'S BAZAAR.

Spectacular Presentation of "A Dream of Fair Women"—The Entertainment Will Close To-night.

Another large crowd of people were in attendance last night at the "Doll's Bazaar," given by the Young People's Organ Fund Society of Grace M. E. Church, and thoroughly enjoyed the splendid entertainment.

Commencing about 8 o'clock, the superb orchestra, which has received many high compliments, rendered several choice selections—"Iron Cross" (overture), "Niagara" (quickstep), and "Black America" (two-step).

After the playing by the orchestra a magnificent spectacular production of Tennyson's "A Dream of Fair Women" was given upon the large stage at the south end of the hall, which presented a rare scene of loveliness, festooned with evergreens, palms and choice cut and pot plants, while the effect of the different colored rays of light cast upon the beautiful surrounding decorations of flowers by many prettily shaded banquet and piano lamps arranged deftly on the stage, was enchanting.

The poem, "A Dream of Fair Women," was read with ease and grace by Miss Hattie Taylor, who possesses the rare gift of an exceedingly sweet and well modulated voice, and at different intervals during the reading of the poem the fair women, each magnificently costumed in the fashion of the period they represented, made their appearance upon the stage and formed a semi-circle in front of "Cleopatra," who gracefully reclined upon a couch in the rear.

The young ladies who participated in this charming entertainment and the characters they impersonated were as follows: Miss Eva Willis, as Ellen of Troy; Miss Louise Corbett, as Iphigenia; Miss Sallie Bryan, as Cleopatra; Miss Annie Hankins, as Jepthah's daughter; Miss Annie Taylor, as Rosamond; Miss Mary Shepard, as Joan d'Arc; Miss Annie Bowden, as Margaret Moore; Miss Carrie White, as Queen Eleanor.

Again to-night the Bazaar will be open, and the entertainment will embrace a combination of the two programmes rendered the previous evenings. Admission, 10 cents.

— Revs. W. B. Oliver and F. H. Farrington and Mr. D. L. Gore left yesterday for Oxford to attend the Baptist State Convention.

BRAGG'S LETTER A SLANDER.

His Charge That Fort Fisher's Garrison Was Drunk at the Bombardment False—Dr. F. O. Hawley, a Participant, Indignantly Denies the Story.

(Charlotte Observer.)

I have just read the article written by Gen. Bragg to his brother in Sunday's issue. To say I am disgusted, is putting it mildly. To say I am surprised would not be true. Nothing emenating from this source of bad omen could surprise me. In the first place Gen. Bragg was not at Fort Fisher nor could he be induced to go or send any assistance to the fort. He would listen to nothing suggested by either of those noble and brave officers. I allude to Gen. Whiting and Col. Lamb. No better or braver soldiers fought for the Lost Cause. I speak advisedly, being an eye witness. I was wounded on that same Sabbath day as was Gen. Whiting and Col. Lamb and was captured at the same time they were, and it is false and slanderous to accuse the Fort Fisher garrison of being drunk or quartered in bomb proofs. No more desperate struggle was made during the war and never did soldiers behave more nobly. Gen. Bragg was responsible for the fall of Fort Fisher, as all who were in the fort at the time of the bombardment believe, and if Col. Lamb and Gen. Whiting could have exercised their will and better judgment no doubt the results would have been different. I read carefully the article by Col. Lamb, published in the Observer recently, and testify to the correctness of all he said.

As to all the officers and most of the soldiers being drunk, it is absolutely false. We had no time to look up anything to eat, much less to drink. I was in it all, from the beginning to the end, and can truthfully testify to the fact that not one drop of spirits did I see or smell, nor did I see any one drunk. Now who has the best right to know the facts and to be believed——an eye-witness on the ground or Gen. Bragg in Wilmington, twenty miles away, and out of the reach of any guns?

Two of the officers, Capt. K. J. Braddy, in command of one of the cannon, and Capt. C. H. Blocker, aid on staff, both of whom were kinsmen of mine, and were, of course, close connected, Capt. Blocker being the one who carried me to the rear after I was wounded, will, no doubt, as well as all who were in the fort condemn this letter of Gen. Bragg's as maliciously false or as cruel negligence of duty in ascertaining the facts.

Sad, indeed, for the Confederacy, was the day Gen. Bragg was put in command at Wilmington.

A careful reading of the history of our late war will show that Gen. Bragg was a signal failure. His conduct and bad generalship in the matter of the defence of Fort Fisher finds its counterpart in his campaigns in the West.

General Bragg had made a reputation for inefficiency before he was called to the defence of the "gateway of the Confederacy," and no slanderous, trumped-up charge of his, published more than thirty years after the lamentable event, can detract from the immortality of glory won by the splendid Whiting and the superb Lamb and their followers, or save him from the condemnation he has received and deserves.

CAPE FEAR AND YADKIN.

[Baltimore Sun, Dec. 8th.]

A flurry in the securities of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad yesterday stirred up some excitement on the Stock Exchange. Compared with prices of a week ago, 10 per cent. more was bid for series A bonds 11¼ per cent. for series B, and sales of series C were made at an advance of 18 per cent. over what was offered for them a week ago. During the day B bonds sold from 47 up to 49, with 50¾ bid at the close, and C bonds sold from 47¼ up to 51.

Two reasons were given by the street for these advances One was the settlement of the differences between the Seaboard Air Line and the Southern Railway promising more stable rates, and the other was the belief that the Court of Appeals would affirm the decision of Judge Simonton ordering that the road should be sold as an entirety and not by divisions. If this decision is upheld the plans of the Baltimore reorganization committee will be carried out.

It is understood that a reorganization of the property will develop the appearance in control of a strong railway interest. In some quarters the Southern Railway is regarded as likely to get control of the property, while others believe that an alliance with the Seaboard Air Line will be formed. At a meeting of the company's bondholders in Baltimore about two years ago propositions were submitted by both the Seaboard and the Southern. The Seaboard offered to operate the whole property and the Southern's bid was to take division A. Under Receiver Gill the road has been put in fine physical condition and the earnings are reported to be greater than at any time in the history of the road.

Labor-Saving Invention.

Mr. J. B. Farrar, of this city, is the inventor of quite an ingenious machine—a tire-holder for forges. The machine is especially adapted for use in any blacksmith shop where vehicles are repaired, as it does away with the old clumsy process of heating tires, and saves the loss of much time and labor. The machine is nicely constructed, and suspends a tire of any size in the forge, and then revolves it through the flame, thereby preserving the same temperature of heat at all parts of the tire. Mr. Farrar patented his invention at the patent office in Washington, D. C., the 2nd of last month.

Magistrates' Courts.

The case against John Swindell, the colored boy charged with being implicated in the larceny of two ladies' cloaks, was transferred from the Police Court yesterday to Justice Bunting, before whom Swindell will be tried to-day. Justice Bunting has also three other cases against Swindell, one charging carrying a concealed deadly weapon and two charging assault with a deadly weapon.

Account Christmas holidays the Seaboard Air Line will sell tickets between points in Virginia, North Carolina and South Carolina, at rate of four cents per mile one way for the round trip. Tickets on sale December 23nd to 25th, inclusive, and December 30th to January 1st, inclusive, limited to January 4th, 1898.

CONFIDENCE.

During the last Presidential campaign the gold men played the "confidence" game on the country, and played it strong. If we could just get confidence to come in and make herself at home, we would be all right, for then prosperity, with all that this implies, would come waltzing in and make itself at home, too. Enough of the voters, stimulated by the contents of Mark Hanna's hat or other persuasives, took them at their word, elected Mr. McKinley, retired Mr. Bryan from the Presidential arena for that time, declared for "sound money," and then the joyful chorus was raised that "confidence was restored" and we were solid. And prosperity was right on her heels. The furnace fires were lighted, the idle hands were put to work, the railroads were giving out orders for thousands of tons of new rails and thousands of new cars to be ready to handle the immense volume of business that was coming, and all that sort of thing. But it wasn't long before they began to sing low, for it was either a bogus confidence that skipped in or she soon skipped out.

The rise in the price of wheat, which was not among the contemplated factors as confidence or prosperity propellers then, gave them an opportunity to make some more remarks on that line, but even with all that things are lagging in a sluggish sort of way, and they say it is because we have not got a sufficient stock of confidence. The installment that came with the triumph of "sound money" and the election of McKinley got a set back recently when the free silver fellows showed such discouraging vitality and pugnacity in the late elections. There are some of the organs, however, which believe that confidence hasn't been quite knocked out. The New York Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin is one of these. It discusses as follows:

"Do the foreign capitalists who are looking askance at American securities realize what is signified by the fact that since early in August the gold reserve in the Treasury has increased $17,000,000, and since about the period of the national election it has increased $43,000 000? The Treasury is actually embarrassed by the desire of the banks to deposit gold with it and take out legal tender notes. There have been times within a very small number of years when the embarrassments of the Treasury were of a very different character. Four times since 1893 the desire of financiers to deposit legal tender notes and take out gold became so very pressing that the Treasury had to issue bonds in payment for the gold that its creditors demanded. Now the gold in the Government vaults is greater than at any other time in the past half dozen years, and it is still increasing and likely to go on increasing for some time. If silverism were liable to triumph in this country, if the ability or the disposition of the Government to maintain the gold standard were as doubtful as its ability was thought to be a few years ago, the gold would now be in private vaults and the legal tender notes would be in the Treasury. That American financiers are giving up their gold and taking the notes of the Government is the best possible evidence that they have no apprehensions of these notes being paid in silver, and they are far better judges of the probabilities than any foreign financiers are. So long as American capitalists are able to absorb the American securities foreigners are unwilling to hold, the foreign unloading amounts to a highly advantageous discharge of our European liabilities. The increased railway earnings, the increased exports of manufactured goods, the expanding trade in all directions, reconcile Americans to the ownership of their own means of production and transportation, even though the immediate occasion of that ownership be European distrust of us. We trust ourselves, and in due time the foreign financiers who sold when prices began to go up will be buying again at the top of the market to the great pecuniary profit of Americans."

The paper from which we quote is not afraid that silverism will prevail and is therefore not apprehensive that we will run short on confidence. Confidence is a good thing. Men must have confidence in each other, for if they didn't things would become fearfully mixed, and citizens must have confidence in their Government, for if they didn't that Government would get in a very bad way.

But isn't there a good deal of bunco and rot in this confidence talk? What do they mean by it? Is it the confidence that the millions of toilers and wealth-producers have in the Government, or the confidence of the few who manipulate the money, and buy bonds? It seems to be that when the latter are satisfied with the standing of the Government the confidence requirements are complied with, and we can feel safe. In other words, Government policies must be so shaped and so carried out as to meet the approval of the select few and thus retain their confidence, regardless of how those policies may affect the millions who in time of war sustain the Government and in time of war and of peace produce the wealth and the revenues to keep the Government running and enable it to meet its obligations. It may be all well enough to retain the confidence of the few when their demands are just and reasonable, but there is a pretty well grounded conviction that one of the principal causes of trouble with this country has been that in pandering and yielding to the unreasonable demands of the select few to retain their confidence this Government has forfeited the confidence of the masses, without whose support and sustaining power it would be weak indeed.

Where is the cause of all this agitation that has been witnessed within the past few years if not in the belief that the bond manipulators and the money changers had gotten possession of the Government and were shaping policies and dictating legislation in their own interests and against the interests of the masses, who are looked upon as mere tribute payers to the dictatorial few? Populism, agrarianism and other isms, however extreme, mistaken or impracticable they may be, are simply protests in some form against this perversion of the Government, this abuse of the law making power, and this betrayal of the people, whose confidence in the Government made it the great Government it was, before it fell into the hands of the patriots for revenue, who put up jobs on it and then threaten it with a loss of confidence if it fails to carry out the job according to the terms they propose.

Perhaps it may not be an orthodox view to take of it from a gold man's standpoint but we can't help believing that the Government would come nearer filling the purpose of its creation, and its mission as a Government "of the people, for the people and by the people" if it endeavored more to merit and retain the confidence of the people even at the risk of losing the confidence of the money changers and bond dealers, who support it principally for what they can make by the operation. When it comes to a choice between the two the Government ought to be with the people, who support it in peace and defend it in war. It is the confidence of these it should seek to win and make strong.

MINOR MENTION.

Senator Butler has denied, or made pretence of denying, (for it isn't a denial in fact), the truth of the charges made against him as to certain slanderous utterances in his Rocky Mount speech. He is apparently very much shocked and quite indignant that such language should be attributed to him. It may be incidentally observed that his indignation was not aroused until he saw that extract from the Rocky Mount paper copied by other papers, with such comments as it suggested. But it wouldn't be such a remarkable utterance for Mr. Butler after all, for he had previously said substantially the same thing in his Caucasian, the difference being that what he wrote then was written with thought and deliberation, and what he said at Rocky Mount might have been uttered in warmth and without due deliberation. The editor of the Windsor Orient, who referred to the file of the Caucasian, found the following in the issue of September 30th, about two weeks before the Rocky Mount speech was delivered:

"This awful crime of rape, the condemnation of which should be prompted by sincere motives and honest purposes, is used in a hypocritical manner * * * * * for base and partisan ends, and all the time they are condemning the nature of the crime they are secretly longing for more rapes that they may better play upon the prejudices of the people."

Insert the word "hire" in this and it would fit the Rocky Mount case to a dot. Of course the persons he had in mind when he wrote as "secretly longing for more rapes that they may better play upon the prejudices of the people," were Democrats, and consequently there is no need to insert 'Democrats." But perhaps Senator Butler may wriggle out of this by saying that it wasn't "Senator" Butler who wrote that but "Editor" Butler, as it wasn't "Senator" Butler but "Editor" Butler who carried his pocket full of free passes on the railroads. Under the circumstances, in the presence of the above extract that would be about as good a defence as any he has made.

Simultaneously with the report that lower prices are to be made in staple cotton goods comes the report that "a large percentage of the manufacturers of Fall River, Mass., are in favor of reducing the wages of their employes as one method contributing to the relief of the situation." A few days ago cotton goods went down in the Eastern markets to the lowest figure, according to the dispatch, ever touched in the trade Here is a practical illustration of the "McKinley prosperity" which the "advance agent" hurried up. There were lower prices than previously under the Wilson tariff, the result of lower duties and free raw materials, but while there was more or less depression then, the higher protection advocates charged it all to the Wilson tariff which "put out the fires in the furnaces," closed the shops and sent the workmen tramping through the country. Of course this was a lie, for the manufactures as a general thing were more prosperous then than they are now, the workmen got as high, if not higher wages, and prices never touched the low mark they have reached since the new tariff went into operation, and there was no wheat famine in Europe then and no "dollar wheat" in this country. It will not do to attribute this to overproduction, for the manufacturers have a way of guarding against that at least to some extent, just as they have been doing all along. The true reason is that the masses of the people are compelled to economize, and are consequently purchasing as little as possible, notwithstanding the great prosperity which the high tariff organs tell them they are enjoying. But a sufficient answer to all this is the frozen fact that the manufactures are complaining more than they have complained for years.

* * *

It seems to be very difficult to get definite information as to the status of and progress on the Panama Canal. Sometimes it is reported that work is being pushed vigorously, that a large number of workmen are employed, and that its completion cannot be far off. It was stated sometime ago that an English company had secured a controlling interest in it, and that they were rushing the work with the purpose of anticipating the Nicaragua scheme and completing their canal before work could be commenced in earnest on that canal, concluding that the completion of one would prevent the construction of the other. The report of Consul General Gudger, at Panama, to the State Department, under date of December 3rd, is the latest we have in reference to this. The substance of his report is thus given by wire:

"He says that it is whispered that England is doing all in her power to obtain control of the canal. France may not push the work forward, but some other nation or some other company will surely do so if those in charge forfeit their rights.

"The canal when completed will extead from Colon on the Atlantic to Panama on the Pacific, fifty-four miles. All along the route are sheds full of new and costly machinery. It was estimated the latter has cost $100 000.000 and that there has been expended on the canal a total of $275,000 000 A conservative estimate is that the canal is about one-third finished, but with the new machinery on hand it is said the remainder of the work can be completed for $150,-000 000. The report is that a force adequate to finish the project in from seven to ten years will be put to work. During the next sixty days a committee is to investigate the progress of affairs, and an effort will be made to get more money to continue operations. The canal is practically completed from Colon to Bajzo, fourteen miles, but this is the least expensive part. The great difficulty is in passing the Calebria Ridge. The width of the canal will be 100 feet wide at the top and 72 feet at the bottom, except through the ridge, where it will be 78 feet wide at the top and 29 feet at the bottom."

They have undertaken a very stupendous work, but in these days money can do almost anything, and if we keep fooling with the Nicaragua canal they will get there before we begin, and then the gates from ocean to ocean will be in control of rival powers.

"Saved Her Life."

MRS. JOHN WALLET, of Jefferson, Wis., than whom none is more highly esteemed or widely known, writes. "In 1890 I had a severe attack of LaGrippe and at the end of four months, in spite of all physicians, friends and good nursing could do, my lungs heart and nervous system were so completely wrecked, my life was despaired of, my friends giving me up. I could only sleep by the use of opiates. My lungs and heart pained me terribly and my cough was most aggravating. I could not lie in one position but a short time and not on my left side at all. A MOST GRAPHIC STORY.

It is Taken direct from Real Life

A Charming New England Lady Tells Her Experience Both Abroad and in America.

The unwritten romances of life are more wonderful and far more interesting than the most vivid works of fiction. The one we are about to relate occurred in real life, and is both interesting and instructive.

Mrs. Jennie Ray formerly lived in Manchester, N. H. Her home was pleasant, her surroundings comfortable. In the year 1880 she visited England, and while in that country began to experience strange sensations. At first she attributed them to the change of chimate, but they continued and increased, until finally, like many another woman, she became utterly discouraged.

It was while in this condition that Mrs. Ray returned to America and her home. Thousands of women who read this story can appreciate the condition in which Mrs. Ray then was and sympathize with her suffering. Two prominent physicians were called and endeavored to do all in their power for her relief. In spite, however, of their skill, Mrs. Ray grew weaker and more depressed, while the agony she endured seemed to increase. It was at this time that a noted physician who was called declared Mrs. Ray was suffering from cancer, said there was no help and told her friends she could not live more than a week at the farthest.

And here comes the interesting part of the story, which we will endeavor to tell in Mrs. Ray's own words. She said:

"Unknown to all these physicians, I had been using a preparation of which I had heard much. I didn't tell the physicians because I feared they would ridicule me, and perhaps order its discontinuance. During all the while that the physicians were attending me the preparation was steadily and faithfully doing its own work in its own way, and I had faith in its power. At last the doctor said there was no use of his coming, for he could do me no good. I had suffered so much that I was quite willing to die, but it seems that I was nearer relief than I knew. One week from the day the doctor last called a false growth, as large as a coffee cup, and which looked as though it had been very large, left me. I sent for a doctor, and he declared it was a fibroid tumor, but said he had never known one to come away of itself before. I immediately began to gain health and strength, and I unhesitatingly declare that my rescue from death was due solely to the marvellous effects of Warner's Safe Cure, which was the remedy I took unknown to the physicians, and which certainly rescued me from the grave. It is my firm belief that many ladies who are said to die of cancer of the womb are cases like mine, and if they could be induced to use Warner's Safe Cure, they, like me, might be saved."

The above graphic account is perfectly true in every respect. It is said that "truth is stranger than fiction," and when the thousands of suffering, helpless women who are upon the road which physicians say leads only to death, consider the story as above given, there is reason for hope and joy, even although they may be now in the depths of despondency and misery. To such ladies the above truthtthful account is willingly given.

SPIRITS TURPENTINE.

— Lexington Dispatch: Sheriff W. N. Kinney went to Marganton yesterday morning to carry a young married woman, by the name of Es sick, to the Insane Asylum. The woman's husband had never rode on the cars and couldn't be induced to make the trip.

— Raleigh Press-Visitor: Alfred Impey, an African prince, is at the Shaw University here. He is 20 years old and is a grandson of the late King Kama, of South Africa. His father was named Impey Kama and his mother Balise. His uncle, King William, is now the King and his cousin, Meta Kama, is the only person between him and the throne.

— Raleigh Times: A great number inquiries are being received at the capitol, especially by the Auditor and Secretary of State, in regard to Revolutionary officers and soldiers. A woman in the West wrote to find out something in regard to those bearing her name who served in that war from this State. It was found on investigation that there were plenty of them who joined the army but nearly every mother's son of them had "deserted" opposite his name.

— Greensboro Record: Promptly at 2.30 o'clock this (Tuesday) afternoon Robert S. Ryan stood before Judge Spencer B. Adams and received the sentence of death. The Judge gave the order slowly and distinctly, commanding that Ryan be remanded to jail until Thursday, the 23rd day of December, 1897, on which day, between the hours of 8 o'clock in the forenoon and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, he should be taken by the sheriff to the place appointed "and there be hanged by the neck until he is dead, and may the Lord have mercy on your soul."

— Danbury Reporter: Mr. Joel F. Hill, a prominent citizen of the county, has fallen a victim to a most distressing disease. A few days since he had occasion to read a newspaper, when he found that he had not the remotest remembrance of the art of reading. This is a rare disease, and probably the only instance of its occurrence in this part of the State. The disease is pronounced by Dr. W. V. McCanless to be aphasia, or the entire obliteration of that faculty of the mind pertaining to letters. Mr. Hill is one of the best known and most respected citizens of the county. He has been several times honored with the confidence of the people, and his misfortune is greatly deplored by all his many friends.

— Fayetteville Observer: Miss Flora Jane Campbell died yesterday at Paolia, Harnett county, in her fiftieth year. —— A trade was consummated to-day by which Fayetteville will profit largely. It is the purchase of the Phœnix mill building in Campbellton by Mr. Ed. Williamson, of Graham. The purchase price is $5,000. The building, as is well known, was erected on the co-operative system for a cotton mill, but the scheme failed, after $6,200 had been spent in the construction of the building. Mr. Williamson is interested in the large Saxapahaw mill near Graham and is one of the most popular and best known young manufacturers in the State. He will stock the Phœnix building with a 5,000 spindle yarn plant.

— Lumberton Robesonian: We regret to learn that W. W. McCormac, a merchant of Rowland, was forced to the wall last week by the dull trade and inability to collect money due him on notes and mortgages. He made an assignment on Wednesday, naming S. McIntyre, of this place, as trustee. The liabilities are about $8,000 and the assets will approximate that amount. —— F. M. Stafford & Co., of Chattanooga, Tenn., recently submitted a proposition to the town council to purchase at par the $11,000 of bonds for water works and sewerage. The council has accepted the proposition and negotiations are now pending to close the transaction. As soon as the financial part of the question is settled work will be begun on the water works and sewers.

CURRENT COMMENT

—— Austro Hungary seems to be a nation of sportsmen. There are recorded very few instances in which the races have worked a population up to such a high pitch of excitement as that manifested by the people of Austria for the past month. If there ever was need for anti gambling law, there would seem to be need for one in the Hon. Francis Joseph's empire now.—Norfolk-Landmark, Dem.

—— "Congressman Hepburn, an Iowa Republican, says it would never do to adopt the currency reform schemes suggested by those who would begin by retiring the greenbacks. 'Why,' he says, 'if we should pass a law on these lines at this session Iowa would not return a single Republican congressman next fall, and the Republicans would lose a senator from that state."—Augusta Chronicle, Dem.

The meeting of the executive committee of the Ohio Valley Bimetallic League at Greensburg yesterday was the first step toward an aggressive campaign in Indiana next year. The statement of a prominent silver Republican that the silver Republicans will vote for the Democratic ticket is significant. There is not a doubt that the Democrats will win in Indiana, and since the Republican pretensions in favor of international bimetallism have been exploded, will undoubtedly result in great accessions to the Democratic party in all of the Central and Western states.—Louisville Dispatch Dem.

How to Look Good.

A Fighting "Super."

Mr. Benson made a professional visit to Dublin some time ago and the rehearsals included the due training of a body of stage assistants to represent the hurriedly retreating supporters of Richard "Crookback," when that monarch succumbed to the onslaught of Richmond on the field of Bosworth.

On the night of the first performance of the tragedy the army that was to fly stubbornly refused to leave the field or to acknowledge being vanquished, but turning upon the forces of Richmond gave them a severe drubbing. Nothing could be found to tame them to a proper submission till one of the "rank and file" said:

"Look here, Mr. Benson, if you want us to be beaten, you must put O'Connor" (the leading "bruiser" of the party) "in Richmond's army!"—Pearson's Weekly.

Leap Year Parties.

The opportunity should not be missed. These parties afford rare fun if properly managed. The boys invite the girls and the girls ask the boys to accompany them. The girls choose their partners for dancing and for supper. In short, reverse the usual order of things and you cannot go astray at a leap year party. Plan it all beforehand so that it may work smoothly.—Brooklyn Eagle.

The Right of Way.

In a crowded street keep to the right. Should you wish to break this rule remember that you should turn aside to the right when others wish to pass you. It is courteous, whether you or the stranger has the right of way, to turn aside for your elders or for those who have a burden.

She Smelled Them Whole.

Little Ethel had run across the road to make her usual call upon Aunt Jennie and stopped suddenly in the kitchen, exclaiming, "Oh, my! I smell apples, auntie!" "I should think you might, dear; there is a pan of parings." "But, auntie, I smell whole apples!"—Youth's Companion.

A POET'S CONSTANCY.

Oh, praise is ever sweet to hear!
In simple candor I confess it,
And then, I own, 'tis doubly dear
When loving lips like yours express it.

And yet when calmly I reflect
How much is due to Cupid's blindness,
Forgive me, dear, if I suspect
Your praises only prove your kindness.

Whatever virtues I may boast
(And slight, indeed, is my profession),
The one you praise and prize the most
May be the least in my possession.

You call me "constant" and revere
A mind so steady and unswerving,
But never poet yet, I fear,
Of such applause was quite deserving.

The poet's constancy at best
Is like the bee's—voluptuous rover—
Still constant to his honey quest,
Though found in apple bloom or clover.

And do I thus my faith impeach
As one untrue to love's vocation?
A moment's patience, I beseech,
And you shall hear my explanation.

Suppose the bee, so prone to stray
As fancy bids from bower to bower,
Should chance to find some lucky day
A wondrous honey bearing flower,

Which, though she sipped and came again
As often as the day was sunny,
Quite unexhausted should remain,
An everflowing fount of honey.

Such praise as she might fitly claim,
If ne'er again she proved a rover,
So much (the cases are the same)
Is due your fond and faithful lover.
—John G. Saxe in New York Ledger.

CONSCIENCE.

It was raining, not hard, but a soft, whispering downfall that blurred the outlines of the hills, crowned with glory of deodar and rhododendron, and hardly flecked the smooth surface of the lake that they held between them.

The only two Europeans out in the dreary afternoon were a young man and a girl, who had sheltered under a rock that overhung a hill path some 80 feet above the water. The girl sat with hands clasped round her knees, sailor hat tilted over her eyes and damp hair straggling about her forehead. She was looking across the lake at the hills above and beyond it, and the other, who, by his smooth young face, was hardly more than a boy, was looking at her. He had been playing polo. His white breeches and long boots were splashed and stained, and there was a glimpse of a jersey under the covert coat. He was thin and white, and his eyes were anxious.

"You are always right," he said, "and if you were not I should still believe in you. But—is the thing so impossible?"

"It is impossible," she said. "I dare not do it. I dare not take the best of you now, giving my base metal for your gold and say, 'This is my portion—only mine.' Do not mistake my meaning. I love you as well as I am able, but the mightiest love that I can produce is not fit to be weighed in the scale against yours. This is not my fault; it is my misfortune—the result, I think sometimes, of my upbringing. Thank God, I can see my limitations, and to tie you to me now would be to cripple you for life, and in the end to damn both of us. This is your first love, you say. It has been born too soon. It may not come to fruition. Neither shall it be poured out for me, who am unworthy. Driven back into your heart again, it will leave the power you now expend upon it to be used to better purpose."

"You and I differ in our estimates of you," he said. "You paint yourself all weakness, all hollowness, all contradiction, and yet here to my power, as you are pleased to call it, you oppose a will so strong and inflexible that nothing I can do will bend it."

"That is because I love you," she said. "It is the utmost I can do—my supreme effort. If I loved you a little less, if my eyes were not gifted for the time with this inner sight— But, there, let us put aside sentimental considerations for a moment and think of what it means from the worldly point of view. Aren't you penniless? Am I not thriftless and destitute of that femininity—I can't define it better—that most women get as their birthright? There's a superficial cleverness about me which you, in your honest heart, admire, but how far does it take me to getting 16 annas for my rupee or putting a tidy hem to a dishcloth? I can't worry over these things in the approved housewifely fashion. It's not in me. Trifles? No, those are the realities of life. And, even granting that love could teach me these things—which I doubt—still you could not do it. Wouldn't you have to leave the regiment and give up your place among your equals and lose your right to let men know you for what you are?"

"I can't put aside the consideration that I love you better than all these things," he said slowly. "It is the finest regiment on earth, I admit, but you are the only woman. Well, yes, it would mean poverty. That is why I am a madman to ask you to share it. But you are not afraid of that."

"Oh, yes, I am!" she said. "I am an arrant coward in addition to my other shortcomings. Only I could do with it because I have never known anything better. You don't know what it is, really. You have a bother to meet your bills sometimes, and that is bad, but they are paid somehow, and you don't have to do actually anything less than what the others do—men who have money and interest to set against your brains. Given time and no millstone round your neck, you will keep level, and then you will begin to forge ahead. It is hard for a man to rise by sheer worth—but it is possible, only he must have a free hand and no one to think of but himself.

"But married— The aspect would change at once. And even though you were still as good as other men, even perhaps a little better, I should know what you had missed, and why. Perhaps it is that I am too proud for you to give up the best of your life for me. That must be it. Yes, I am too proud."

"Why should we not wait?"

"Why, indeed? Well, since you must have it, I have pictured it often enough. I have seen you in the flush of your youth at the outset of your career—and I believe that career will be a high one—set down to wait for a distant happiness. You don't see me. I am removed. I see you afraid to venture this move or that move—and you know there are always risks in the life game—because you are waiting. I see you dulled to what is going on around you, dulled to the present need and the present opportunity, because you are waiting. I see you waiting on without regret, and gradually, gradually, the spirit is sapped out of you, the ambition to be anything but as other men are. The fine temper that is in you now is numbed, and after that there remains mediocrity, which in you would be failure. And for the man you should be there will only be a somebody in the ruck, whereas you were made for the van."

"I don't understand."

"No, that is my part. And then again there is my side to look upon. I am to go away from you and to be without you for years and years. I shall never forget you; I shall not cease to love you; I shall always think of you tenderly and hungrily, because I am your love and you are mine. But, at the same time, I am only myself, a poor, patchy, inconsistent thing. Other people stronger than I will come by and influence me more because they are nearer than you at a distance—not because they can dim the love for you, understand."

"Can you do without me?" he said.

She wrenched herself away and burst into a wild fit of crying.

"Oh, my God, what a brute I am!" he said. "My darling—listen. Ah, stop crying. You make my heart bleed. I cannot assent to what you say of yourself, I cannot follow what you say of me. You are more sensitive than I; you catch sounds and signs where I neither hear nor see. But I have learned enough to know that I only torture you by my persistence, and that I do not move you one inch from your position. It is your wish that we should part, and so it must be, and perhaps some day I shall understand. I know that you are making a great sacrifice and that it is for me. You will forgive me if I cannot yet see clearly wherein is the urgent necessity. You stooped to me in your condescension, you made me your lover for always. I loved you—I worship you, and I hold it to my honor to have had your love."

He put his arm round her again and drew her head down to his shoulder, and her sobs shook him as they sat thus. Presently the sobs became fewer, and then came only at long intervals.

She spoke at last.

"It must be. I am not worth it—not worth your love. And you will be a better man—yes, and in the end a happier one. Believe in me if you will, at least it can do no harm now that we are to be apart. Hold me close for a minute, since it is the end. Oh, where could the world show another such lover?"

And from the future that was closing down upon them she plucked the veil savagely.

"I am glad. Yes, I am glad to lose you."

"You're tired. Suppose we sit it out instead of dancing?"

"Yes, that will do," said the girl. "I am tired."

The music had begun before the man spoke, and two or three couples swept into the ballroom as he crossed it with the girl on his arm. It was a stuffy night, gemmed outside with the lights of the street and of carriages moving slowly before the entrance and crowded within by a London semifashionable throng, bent in a bored way upon amusement. The big hall, green with palms and dark with carved oak, was full of a kaleidoscopic mixture of bright dresses, expansive shirt fronts, babble of voices and laughter, and beyond there was a glimpse of the supper room, starred with lights and resounding with the jingle of plates and glasses. The girl and the man walked through together and down a corridor to a couple of chairs in the shelter of a Japanese screen. Opposite them a French window framed a patch of garden hung about with paper lanterns, and above that came dusky tree tops and the stars.

The girl, who was the girl of the hillside, leaned back in her chair and twisted a fan about with restless fingers. Certainly at the moment she looked tired. The man twirled his mustache up, first one side and then the other. It was touched with gray, and his hair was flecked, too, but his face was that of a man in his prime—masterful, square jawed and obstinate. There was a deep line from nostril to mouth corner, and his hands were strong and shapely. He crossed his legs, tilted his chair back until he could watch the girl's profile without being guilty of staring and spoke.

"I believe you wanted to speak to me?"

"People take it for granted that I am—am—going to marry you. It is intolerable."

"Ah!" He dropped his mustache and tilted the chair back a little more. "Why intolerable? I am told I am a most eligible person."

She twisted the fan nervously.

"I dare say. I do not want to discuss your eligibility. That is a matter which does not concern me. What does concern me is that I will not be made the subject of these rumors. You know how they come about and where the remedy lies."

"Said remedy being, of course, my extinction, self produced? I know a better one."

"No."

"Don't be in too much of a hurry with that negative. Consider a moment. Is it all due to my persistence and my constant presence? Doesn't some of it come from a casual interest that you take in me, and that shows itself, as these things will, to a too observant world?"

"I am not in the least in love with you, if that is what you mean."

"Oh, no; not at all. I am in love with you, and that suffices—for the present. But still, you take an interest, all the same."

"I suppose so. It is that you fascinate me somehow, and your obstinacy frightens me. I never met a man who was so little moved by my wishes and my words."

"Excuse me. I shall have the greatest pleasure in gratifying some of your wishes."

"Meaning, if I want a toy out of a shop window. My wish is that you take 'no' for an answer and go away."

"And that is what I will not do. No; I love you, and I am going to marry you. Let there be no mistake about it. My love may seem rather brutal—men's passions are brutal under some conditions—but it is a solid affair and it will give you something firm to lean upon and to stand by. You will find me a fairly easy husband when you have realized the futility of pouting at the inevitable. There is the tender side to my love that will give you much, be proud of you, cherish you and stick to you. I'm not a small minded person, and I am wonderfully easy to deal with when I have my own way. That will not be very difficult to give. It only wants—you."

"But why—why—why?" said the girl. "Why should I give myself to you? Just to please your passion? I am not much of a woman, but I have a soul of sorts."

"Well, partly, I suppose. You don't expect a man to make love violently to establish platonic friendship, do you? But I am not a brute, though I am a man. I have watched you since we met, and I have got your character off fairly well. You are undecided about most things; you are obstinate in a weak fashion; you have a supersensitive character that gives you a great deal of pain, and the weapons with which you essay to fight a rough world cut your own hands when you use them. Come to me. I will do the fighting. I will lead, and instead of falling back on your own judgment, too shifting to be reliable, you will have me always behind you to turn to. As to the love, that will come, I fascinate you, you say. You take a fearful pride in the thought that I am your lover, because I am a lover in whom a woman may well be proud. Yes, I don't care to sham becoming modesty just now. And

Sportsmen's Retreat,

AT VAUGHAN, N. C.

Twenty-Six Miles South of Weldon, on the Seaboard Air Line.

A first-class retreat for sportsmen has been opened up at Vaughan, N. C., located 26 miles South of Weldon, on the Seaboard Air Line. The enterprise will be under the management of Mr. E. C. Gerhard, whose successful experience in such matters, will enable him to take care of and to please those who may patronize him.

The hunting in this territory is excellent. Quail is found in abundance. Rabbits, Deer, Squirrel and Wild Turkeys are plentiful, and delightful hunts can be arranged with citizens who have trained dogs and hounds for this purpose. On the river, six or seven miles distant, Wild Geese and Ducks are found in large numbers during the winter season.

The Seaboard Air Line will grant special rates to huntsmen, and will carry their hunting dogs free of charge.

Sportsmen Going South.

"The opening of the hunting season down South is attracting numerous parties of Northern sportsmen, several of which have gone through on the Seaboard Air Line."

"The Seaboard Air Line, recognizing the desirability and importance of attracting sportsmen to its territory, has with its usual foresight and progressiveness, established a hunting lodge at Vaughan, one of the best hunting sections in North Carolina. The lodge promises to be patronized liberally."—Portsmouth Star. no 24 tf

The Morning Star.

WILMINGTON, N. C.

THURSDAY MORNING, DEC. 9, 1897

FILIBUSTERING EXPEDITIONS.

Secretary Gage's Report as to American Vessels—The Case of the Silver Heels.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—Secretary Gage has submitted to the Department of State his report upon the action of the Treasury Department in suppressing filibustering expeditions to Cuba in violation of the neutrality laws, a synopsis of which is furnished by the Department as follows:

"Secretary Gage points out the fact that during two years and a half only six American vessels of an aggregate of 1 881 registered tons are alleged to have successfully landed expeditions from the United States in Cuba. With the exception of the Laurada the six American vessels alleged to have successfully taken part in expeditions in Cuban waters are small tugs and a pilot boat, each of less than 100 net tons, and obviously incapable of carrying large numbers of men or large quantities of ammunition. Three foreign vessels of an aggregate of 1 773 registered tons are alleged to have been successful in the same effort.

"The case of the Silver Heels is included, as the vessel may have been successful, though nothing has been heard of her since her departure, six weeks ago; she may have perished in the severe storm a few days after her departure. Concerning that case, however, it is to be observed that the collector at New York reports that Mr. Hand, representing the Spanish consul, stated to him that he did not desire the vessel detained at the dock, but seized after departure therefrom. Mr. Hand and Mr. Thornhill stated to me that they proposed that the Pinkerton detective agency have the watching of the pier, and they would advise the United States marshal promptly of the departure of the sloop, and that they desired the matter to be left in their own hands."

Secretary Gage makes no estimate of the cost involved, which has evidently been very large, deeming the extent and results of the work performed by the department a better measure of the fidelity of its officers to their oaths and a better standard by which to measure their efficiency.

AFFAIRS IN HAYTI.

The President Issues a Proclamation—Government Taking All Necessary Measures to Maintain Order.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

PORT-AU-PRINCE, December 8.—There was a lively fusilade here at 11 o'clock last night. No damage was done.

Count Schwerin, the German Charge d'Affaires, was received by the President this afternoon. The public mind continues agitated and all the regulars and the National Guard are in readiness.

Shortly after 2 o'clock the President issued a proclamation to the people of Hayti, saying that for the second time Hayti had yielded to German force, contrary to its rights. The government, according to the proclamation, had decided to resist even to the last, but owing to the lack of promised moral influence, (the character of which is not indicated in the proclamation) it was obliged to accept the ultimatum.

The proclamation invites the Haytian people to cease internal quarrelling, and to labor for the raising up again of the nation.

M. Frederique, managing editor of the Journal Impartial and alleged author of the virulent articles attacking the Germans, who is accused of desiring to excite the populace of this place against the government, was arrested to-day and taken on board a Haytian cruiser. At the moment of his embarkation there was much excitement, but order was soon restored. The government has at its disposition a sufficient number of troops, and is taking all the necessary measures to maintain order.

FALL RIVER MILLS.

Cotton Manufacturers Decide to Reduce Wages of Operatives—A Strike Likely to Follow.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

FALL RIVER, MASS., December 8—The Fall River cotton manufacturers at a special meeting to day voted to reduce the wages of the operatives. The cut will not be less than ten per cent, and will affect about 25,000 employes. The cause of the reduction is the depressed condition of the cotton market, which does not enable print cloth, it is asserted, to be manufactured for the price now prevailing, which is the lowest on record.

The attitude of the employes on the matter can hardly be stated until they have had a chance to talk it over, and none of the labor leaders will say much about the subject until meetings have been held. The feeling is prevalent that before the matter is settled there will be a strike, but how large a proportion of the operatives will take part, it is impossible to say. Every effort, however, will be made to avert such action.

HAWAIIAN TREATY.

The Reason It Is Not Pushed in the Senate.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—It is stated by those in a position to know that the reason the Hawaiian treaty is not pushed in the Senate is because the friends of the measure have grave doubts as to their ability to secure the necessary two-thirds vote to pass it. The impression prevails that it may be necessary to pass a joint resolution and annex the islands by legislation. It has been found that a number of Senators who were confidently counted for the treaty are against it, while others have expressed doubts about hasty action.

According to a special dispatch from Paris, the French Cruisers Jean Bart, Isly, Alger and Pascal, have been ordered to be prepared for immediate dispatch to China.

SPANISH OPINION.

Newspaper Comment Upon President McKinley's Message—Premier Sagasta Thinks It is Satisfactory.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

MADRID December 8.—The Premier, Senor Sagasta in an interview regarding President McKinley's message to the United States Congress, is quoted as saying he thinks the message satisfactory "because the threat to intervene in Cuba was made merely to give satisfaction to a portion of the American opinion without the intention of executing it." Continuing, the Premier said that the government would not make a declaration on the subject. He believes the President's words would have influence with the insurgents, and added that the Cortes would not be convoked until the government had ascertained the effect of the message upon the United States Congress.

The Imparcial, commenting on the message, says: "It shows a certain cleverness and evil intention when it refers to filibustering expeditions. McKinley speaks with what appears to be excessive cynicism to those who have not lost all notion of justice. This Government must show the Yankees that the Spanish flag floats over Cuba, and that they have yet to tear it down." In concluding, the Imparcial remarks: "The manufacture and sale of arms is not the same thing as using them."

El Liberal, also commenting on the President's message, says: "It is more favorable to Spain than President Cleveland's, because it recognizes Spain's intention to enthusiastically labor to re-establish peace in Cuba."

The ministerial El Globo praises President McKinley's message.

The Socialist Republican El Pais asserts that the message is "shameful" as it "implied the moral bankruptcy of the monarchy."

La Correspondencia de Espana, the official organ, says that after reflection Spanish opinion on President McKinley's message to Congress is less optimistic than at first. It proceeds to impugn the sincerity of the President's protestation of friendship for Spain and of respect for international obligations, but admits that the message was addressed to Congress principally and in language which, though not intended to please Spain, will annoy jingoes and filibusters."

The Marquis Villamejor, a member of the Senate has written to Senor Sagasta, the Premier, offering 10,000 pounds ($50,000) to start a national subscription for the increase of the fleet.

To-morrow the Carlist deputies will meet to discuss President McKinley's message to Congress. It is said they intend to provoke popular manifestations against the message.

S. A. L. AND SOUTHERN.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK, December 8.—There are strong indications that the troubles in the Southern traffic situation, growing out of the independent and aggressive attitude of the Seaboard Air Line, are soon to be ended and that the policy of that company will hereafter be one of peace and co operation. This change of policy on the part of the Seaboard is said to be due to the fact that its conduct has been most expensive and with no material gain for the shareholders.

Within a recent period the Seaboard has manifested a peaceful demeanor to its competitors and it is now stated on high authority that negotiations are pending, in which the Pennsylvania is actively concerned, looking to the cessation of hostilities on Chesapeake bay, which have been in progress for two years between the Seaboard and Southern. The Bay Line and Southern have been maintaining a very unprofitable and peculiar warfare, ostensible in defence of a principle, and the result has been far from affecting a withdrawal from the bay of either line. The Seaboard insisted that the only solution of the problem was the Southern's withdrawal, and in this the Southern did not concur.

There is evidence that an honorable compromise between the two lines is now under consideration, and the prediction is made that the Seaboard will soon co-operate with other Southern lines and be satisfied with its share of the business, with the prospects of dividends in the near future.

THE BICYCLE CONTEST.

Miller Makes a Marvellous Record.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NEW YORK December 8—At midnight the indomitable eighteen were still pedaling their way around the high-banked floor of Madison Square Garden. From midnight to midnight Miller had put more than 350 miles behind him. This marvellous record on the third day of the great race carried him along to a total of over 1,200 miles in 71 hours; 189 miles ahead of the former record. During this weary journey Miller has left the track but for a few hours. With the exception perhaps of Stephane, the Frenchman, Miller, up to late in the afternoon, had less sleep than any other man on the track. And, notwithstanding this, Miller is seemingly in as good condition as he was yesterday, when experts claimed that he and Rice, the Wilkesbarre coal miner, were in the best shape of all the riders.

The next man to Miller at the present time is Rice, and he is something more than fifty miles behind. But he is strong, and seems to have the same determination that carried him almost to the front in the big race of last year.

Last year's champion, Teddy Hale, whose great ride then promised to be far outdone this year, is now making up ground. He is almost 175 miles behind the leader, but nevertheless he has crept up from tenth place, which he held last night, to eighth place, and is certain to go much higher before the end is reached.

THE GERMAN DEMONSTRATION.

Rumor That China Has Ceded to Germany Kiao-Chou Bay.

By Cable to the Morning Star.

BERLIN December 8.—It is rumored to-night that China has ceded Kiao-Chou to Germany. Whether the report be true or not, there is every indication in the preparations for the expedition under Prince Henry that a long stay is contemplated.

Emperor William will make the departure of Prince Henry's squadron from Kiel the occasion for an imposing naval display.

The Brandenburg, a first class battleship of more than 10,000 tons displacement, and the Wurtemburg, a second class battleship of nearly 7,500 tons, while coming from Christiania to Kiel to take part in the display, collided. Both vessels were injured, the Wurtemburg so badly that it was necessary to send her to dry dock.

INDEPENDENCE OF CUBA

RESOLUTION PRESENTED BY SENATOR ALLEN OF NEBRASKA.

He Declared the President's Neglect to Take Action an Exhibition of Rank Hypocrisy and a Flagrant Neglect of Public Duty.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

SENATE.

WASHINGTON, December 8—To-day's session of the Senate occupied less than an hour, the time principally being consumed by the members in the presentation of memorials, resolutions and bills.

Senator Allen, of Nebraska, presented a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the Senate that Congress should with all due and convenient speed, acknowledge by appropriate act the political independence of Cuba. Mr. Allen said that he had long urged the United States to recognize the independence of the Cuban insurgents. He would not be content with the recognition of belligerency, but would insist upon the acknowledgement of absolute political liberty. He was satisfied that the people would not be content with the course advised by the administration. Inasmuch as the Cubans for more than two years on many battlefields had demonstrated their valor and love for liberty, he felt that they had earned a recognition of their political liberty and that it ought to be accorded to them without further temporizing. If necessary this recognition should be backed by a fleet of American vessels in Cuban waters. He expressed a belief that the owners of Spanish bonds in this country, American citizens holding property in Cuba, which had been injured or destroyed by the insurgents, and the carrying trade of the country which might be affected by such a step, had joined to prevent the recognition of Cuba's political independence. Mr. Allen expressed the belief that President McKinley's statement in his message that the recognition of the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents is now unwise and therefore inadmissible, would be a great disappointment to members of the Republican party throughout the United States. The national convention of that party had declared in favor of the independence of Cuba, going further than the single recognition of belligerency. He thought that the President was under obligations to carry out the pledge which his party had made—a pledge which had been made to 78 000,000 of people. The President, Mr. Allen thought, had been lulled to sleep by the declaration of Spain that she would give Cuba a semi-political existence. He expressed the belief that the President's neglect to take such action as would insure the political independence of Cuba was an exhibition of "rank hypocrisy and a flagrant neglect of public duty, which would be corrected by the all-ruling Power in His own good time."

At the conclusion of Senator Allen's remarks, Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, presented a resolution expressing the regret of the Senate at the news of the death of Representative Ashley B Wright, of Massachusetts, and providing for an adjournment as a further mark of respect.

At 1 25 the resolution was adopted and the Senate adjourned.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The session of the House lasted only fifteen minutes.

Mr. W. A Stone of Pennsylvania, Republican, reported the pension appropriation bill, the first of the appropriation bills, and gave notice that he would call it up immediately after the reading of the journal to-morrow.

The committee on elections and the committee on banking and currency were given leave to sit during the sessions of the House.

The House at 12 15 adjourned.

FINANCIAL LEGISLATION.

A Sharp Debate in the House Committee on Banking and Currency.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 8—The House Committee on Banking and Currency, which will have the shaping of a considerable portion of the financial legislation before the House, held its first meeting this morning and outlined its general plan of action. In view of Secretary Gage's recommendation of a comprehensive revision of currency and banking affairs, a resolution was adopted inviting the Secretary to embody his views in a bill. The committee was informed that the Secretary was now at work on a measure, and that it would be available for the committee in about a week.

Mr. Hill, of Connecticut, then precipitated a sharp debate by moving that the committee act at once by reporting to the House a bill embodying three of the financial features which had the President's approval. These were embodied in a bill heretofore offered by Mr. Brosius, of Pennsylvania, and Mr. Hill now proposed that the first three sections be placed before the House immediately. The three sections provided: Bank circulation up to the par value of bonds deposited; reduction of the tax on circulation to one-fourth of one per cent.; the establishment of small banks in rural communities.

The debate was proceeding with animation when at 12 o'clock the meeting went over, a vote on the Hill motion not having been reached.

PERMANENT INJUNCTION

Restraining the City of Norfolk from Taxing Newspapers.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

NORFOLK, VA., December 8.—Judge Prentis has rendered a decision in the case of the Norfolk Virginian and other daily newspapers against the city of Norfolk in which the plaintiffs sue for permanent injunction restraining the city from collecting a special tax upon newspapers. Judge Prentis makes the temporary injunction granted perpetual, on the ground that this city cannot levy a tax which the State does not impose. The case will be taken up to the Court of Appeals.

SENATOR McLAURIN SICK

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—Senator McLaurin, of South Carolina, is confined to his bed with an attack of typhoid fever. The Senator was ailing when he arrived here a week ago, but the typhoid attack did not develop until a day or so ago. He is in the care of Dr. Wellington, assisted by a trained nurse. No apprehension is felt over the attack, as it is not of a violent character and the Senator has a rugged constitution.

John Schwinon, sixty-two years of age, committed suicide yesterday afternoon in Chicago, Ill., by hurling himself from the high bridge in Lincoln Park to the ice, fifty feet below. Schwinon was out of work and despondent.

NEWS FROM RALEIGH.

[Special Star Correspondence.

RALEIGH, N. C., December 8.

Three hundred delegates are expected at the Baptist State Convention, which convenes in Oxford to-morrow. Raleigh will send a delegation of twenty-five.

Rev. O. L. Stringfield, the financial secretary of the Baptist Female University, says his report to the convention will show that he has collected $13.000 in the past year. Mr. Stringfield is of the opinion that the University will be opened next September. It will take $30,000 to do this.

Mr. Robert Page, a son of the ex-Sheriff, expects to go to the Klondike in the Spring.

The run of Pullman conductors from here to Chattanooga on the Southern's vestibule has been changed. The conductors now make the trip from here to New Orleans.

To-day the Yadkin railroad case from Stanly county is being argued in the Supreme Court. The commissioners of the county enjoined the treasurer from paying interest on the bonds, for the reason that the railroad failed to live up to its contract. The bonds are for $100,000

It is stated by a friend of Attorney General Walser that he has only practiced a prevailing custom in retaining counsel to assist him in important cases. The records show that more than $40,000 has been paid by the State in special attorney's fees since 1877, when Vance first went into office. The Attorney General, it is said, does not approve of the reckless employment of lawyers in every little case to the extent that Governor Russell does.

MRS. McKINLEY'S CONDITION.

She Continues to Grow Weaker—The President Still at Her Bedside.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

CANTON, O., December 8.—Mother McKinley continues to grow weaker. During the evening she again aroused from her palsied sleep. The awakening, however, was not accompanied by any appreciable rally. This was the condition at 11.30 o'clock. Up to that hour the patient remained in the deep sleep in which she reposed all day. When the doctor made his last call, finding her in this sleep, he thought she would live until morning. The President is almost constantly at the bedside, refusing to be relieved by others and to take the rest and exercise he should.

THE HOLIDAY RECESS.

Indications That Congress Will Adjourn December 18th to Meet January 3rd or 4th.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

WASHINGTON, December 8.—The indications are that the holiday recess of Congress will extend from Saturday, December 18th, to Monday or Tuesday, January 3rd or 4th. Speaker Reed is understood to favor these dates. If, however, any important business develops in the Senate or House, the recess will probably be postponed until Christmas week. So far as the House is concerned no general legislation will be ready for consideration before the holidays, and work is likely to be confined to the appropriation bills.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The Emperor Expected to Issue a Decree Prolonging for a Year the Status Quo.

VIENNA, December 8.—It is expected that Emperor Francis Joseph will shortly issue decrees prolonging for a year the status quo between Austria and Hungary regarding the sharing of imperial expenditures, budgetary and other essential matters.

Owing to fears for the safety of the German members the meeting of the Bohemian Diet was postponed.

ELOPED WITH A NEGRO.

The Young Daughter of a Wealthy Couple in Oconto County, Wisconsin.

By Telegraph to the Morning Star.

GREEN BAY, WIS, December 8.—Gertrude Prince, the pretty 19 year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Prince, of Hayes, Oconto county, has eloped with William Smith, a negro. The couple were married yesterday by a justice of the peace at Mountain, Wis. The Prince family is wealthy and prominent in the town of Hayes. John Prince, the father, swears vengeance on Smith and has disinherited his daughter, insisting that she can never be forgiven.

CUBA'S WOMAN COLONEL.

Commands a Regiment of Insurgents While Her Husband Fights For Spain.

Near the town of Vuelta Abajo, in the province of Matanzas, in Cuba, Adele Asiny de Pilotro lives on the estate that has been the heritage of her family for a number of generations.

Two years ago she lived a prosaic enough life as the wife of a colonel in the Spanish army. Now she bears the title of colonel herself; but, while her husband leads a flying column of royal-ist soldiers, Senora Pilotro commands a regiment of 300 men who are fighting in the army of the Cuban republic.

Husband and wife are operating in the same district. They are likely at any time to face each other as enemies at the heads of their respective commands.

Senora Pilotro is the only woman fighting for Cuban liberty who holds a commission as an officer. The honor was conferred upon her by Commander In Chief Gomez because she organized and equipped the troop which she commands.

The Spanish colonel, her husband, has known for years of her separate ideas, but that never disturbed their loving relations.

The Pilotro estate is famed for its mineral springs. There are caves all over the property, in which the patriots secreted arms and munitions of war in preparation for the uprising that resulted in the present war.

Senora Pilotro has not engaged in a battle, but she has managed to keep the district to which she is assigned well cleared of Spanish troops. — Boston Globe.

The Barefoot Boy.

"May I go barefooted, mamma?" This has been the cry of the small boy—yes, and the girl, too—for several weeks. Who does not remember the joy and sense of freedom when this permission was granted in the spring. The feet and legs were soon browned, the toes stubbed a little, and sometimes tied up for a day or two, but what mattered this so long as there were no shoes or stockings to worry about? Then there was a suggestive limp, but it was not long until the feet became hardened and accustomed to the bare ground and sharp stones. Healthy? Look at the village boy, bounding and leaping, swimming and running. Why, certainly it is healthy. There is an old farmer who lives not far from this city—a man of the old school—who says in the most emphatic terms that children cannot grow if they wear their shoes in the summer. How can they grow, says he, unless they touch the ground? No more than cabbage and corn.—Louisville Commercial.
